A PLACE WHERE NATURE, POETRY AND HISTORY MEET
Nestled in an enchanted landscape framed by the majestic Bridge of Augustus (27 BC) and cradled by the waters of the Nera River, this historic mill, a member of the Italian Historic Residences Association, is a hidden gem in the heart of Umbria.

The History of the Mill

The Mill of the Marquises Eroli stands on the banks of the Nera River, in a setting of great historical and artistic significance — closely connected to the ancient Via Flaminia, the Bridge of Emperor Augustus (27 BC) and the Abbey of San Cassiano.

The property, whose origins are lost in the mists of time, is officially recognised by the Italian State as a site of cultural interest, protected under Law 1089. It is also listed among Italy's historic mills by the AIAMS.

In the 18th century, thanks to its beauty and charm, this place became one of the favoured destinations of the Grand Tour — the journey undertaken by gentlemen, writers and artists from across Europe. Its grand architecture and surrounding landscape provided inspiration for Romantic painting and literature
